Muhammad Abd al-Rahman al-Shumrani (SA-195)—a Saudi al-Qa'ida recruiter and fighter—almost certainly remains committed to supporting extremist causes and has continued to incite against the detention staff at Guantanamo. Since February 2014, he indicated possible plans to reengage in terrorist activity, and he has followed the news of Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant's (ISIL) growing strength in Iraq and Syria with apparent interest. He has shared little additional insight into his post-transfer plans, and there are no indications that he has communicated with any extremists outside Guantanamo.
