Ghassan Abdallah Ghazi al-Sharbi (SA-682) attended a US flight school in early 2001 where he associated with two 9/11 hijackers. He later was selected by a senior al-Qa'ida leader to receive IED training in Pakistan. Despite receiving few infractions since August 2015, Sharbi has been noncompliant by engaging in a long-term, nonreligious fast. He has also been hostile with the guard force throughout his detention, and his statements continue to indicate that he retains extremist views and believes that quitting jihad is wrong. Sharbi maintains limited contact with his immediate family in Saudi Arabia.
