The Periodic Review Board, by consensus, determined that continued law of war detention of the detainee remains necessary to protect against a continuing significant threat to the security of the United States.

In making this determination, the Board considered the detainee's involvement with senior al-Qa'ida leaders, to include agreeing to be a part of an al-Qa'ida suicide operation and facilitating transfers of funds used in terrorist attacks. The Board also noted the detainee's susceptibility to recruitment by extremists due to his continued feeling of an obligation to defend and support oppressed Muslims. Finally, the Board considered that the detainee continues to believe that operations targeting the military are legitimate, including the attack on the USS Cole, and the lack of credible evidence of a change in mindset.

The Board recognizes the detainee's compliant behavior in detention, his large family and its ability to support him as well as his general candor regarding his past activities.
